

COOPER PLANS PROBE COMMISSION

DEPUTY WARDEN MAY SUCCEED THOMAS IF WARDEN SUSPENDED

Woodard Praised By Witnesses; Thomas
Is Under Fire

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—Should Warden P. E. Thomas be suspended as head of the Ohio state penitentiary, Deputy Warden James C. Woodard would probably succeed him, according to all indications today.

Woodard was one of the outstanding heroes in the prison holocaust which claimed more than 300 lives.

All witnesses who appeared before the governor's investigating body highly praised the deputy warden.

Woodard, they said, assumed control of the courtyard of the prison which, at the time of the fire, was filled with panic-stricken prisoners who ran wildly about.

The man, too, quelled a near-riot single-handed. When prisoners in one dormitory threatened violence, Woodard, unarmed and unaided, stood in the center of the milling, cursing convicts and pleaded with the almost crazed prisoners to remain quiet. He promised them that if they would stay in their quarters and not flee to the yard and add more confusion to the already excited mobs there, he would unlock their quarters which would assure them of an avenue of escape if the fire would spread. The convicts listened and responded to his plea.

Woodard helped with the fire-fighting at the time when the courtyard was so filled with smoke that, to use the common expression, it could be cut with a knife.

"When the alarm was first given," Warden Thomas said, "I ran into the guardroom. When I saw it was a fire, I rushed to the outside, to see that there were no escapes."

"Didn't you want to save the men's lives?" he was asked by one of the investigators.

"Absolutely," said the warden. "What did you think to do?" was another question.

"Then, I thought that the most important thing was to see that there were no escapes," came the answer.

Warden Thomas declared that he had given instructions to Guard W. C. Baldwin at the outset of the fire to "get the cell block keys, and let those men loose."

Frequently the questioning centered about the warden's actions during the fire. Thomas declared that there never had been fire drills at the big state prison.

Attorney General Bettman today refused to comment regarding the warden's status now.

At another time, when he was not referring to the warden, the attorney general said:

"Testimony so far points to negligence on the part of certain members of the penitentiary force."

REFORMATORY MAY GET WATER SUPPLY

MANSFIELD, O., April 23.—As yet there is need for better fire-fighting facilities at the state reformatory here, city officials today were seeking improved conditions at the institution, following the recent holocaust at the state penitentiary in Columbus.

Chief Frank May, of the Mansfield city fire department, expects to confer with officials at the reformatory concerning a plan for a better water supply at the institution.

Numerous fires at the reformatory, May said, resulted in a total loss because the private reservoir at the reformatory provided only a limited water supply.

WOMAN SENTENCED

CHILLICOTHE, O., April 23.—Miss Mabel Lewis today was under sentence to serve two years in the Women's State Reformatory at Marysville. The sentence was imposed Tuesday. She was convicted of forging a state highway department check about four years ago while employed in that department.

COUSIN OF IRENE

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—Albert Holland, a prisoner who lost his life in the Ohio penitentiary disaster two hours after his arrival there, was a cousin of Irene Schraeder, Pennsylvania's notorious "blonde woman," it was revealed here today.

Irene Schraeder is under a death sentence in Pennsylvania for the murder of Corporal Brady Paul, of the Pennsylvania state police.

Holland was the last prisoner to be admitted to the penitentiary here before Monday night's horrible holocaust. He was placed in the prison just two hours before the outbreak of the blaze that took his life along with the lives of 316 other convicts.

HOLD SUSPECT IN TAYLOR MURDER

DEATH OF FIRE VICTIM SWELLS TOLL IN HOLOCAUST TO 318; OTHERS MAY DIE

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—One of the many victims of fatal suffocation, Edward Willis, Cuyahoga County, who was serving a five-to-seven year term for larceny, died in the state penitentiary hospital here today.

The passing of Willis raised the death list to 318 as a result of the appalling catastrophe at the Ohio prison Monday night when fire gutted a cell block.

The bodies of the 317 other victims of the prison holocaust here still lie today at the improvised morgue in the horticultural building at the State Fair Grounds.

Of those 317 and 317 coffins there were actually counted by International News Service—only seventy bodies had been officially identified this morning.

With pained memories—worse than those left by any crime they ever committed—seared as in the sears upon their bodies, 230 of the surviving victims lay on white hospital cots today morosely recalling scenes of the horrible holocaust.

Most of the injured, according to medical authorities, will be able to leave the hospital within a week.

Three others are waging a losing battle, it appeared today. They are: Melvin Bartella, Lucas County, serving from two to twenty years for forgery; John Edwards, Hamilton County, serving a life term for fire degree murder and James Andrews of Ross County, serving from ten to twenty years for shooting to kill.

The injured men are under the care of prison nurses. Pale and weakened from their terrifying experience, the convict victims of the penitentiary inferno began to talk stoically of the disaster today, inquiring about their "pals," and exchanging stories of the horrible disaster.

After the injured men are released from the hospital, they will be returned to the dreary routine in the penitentiary. Some of them may be returned to their cells in the undismolished part of the fire-swept G and H block.

ACCOUNTANT FACES CHARGES IN MURDER OF MOVIE DIRECTOR

Confesses Crime But Police Skeptical Pending Probe

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 23.—Russi Rinaldo, an expert accountant, was arrested here early today and booked "on suspicion of murder" in connection with the slaying of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, whose mysterious death has baffled police for eight years.

Shortly after Rinaldo was picked up on a downtown street and taken to headquarters, Captain of Detectives Joseph Taylor stated that Rinaldo had confessed firing the shot which killed Taylor.

Police, however, were somewhat skeptical of the story told by Rinaldo, who, they said, made his "confession" glibly and without the slightest hesitation.

"We are far from convinced that he is telling the truth," was Captain Taylor's statement after questioning the suspect. "There is still a lot of checking to do before we can substantiate his story."

Rinaldo, police asserted, said he was a friend of a motion picture actress who visited Taylor's home on the night of the murder. He said he followed her there on this night and witnessed a quarrel between her and the director.

After the actress left, Rinaldo told police, he went in the house and quarreled with the director because of the way he treated the woman Rinaldo, according to police, said that Taylor drew a gun and that he took it away from the director after a struggle and shot him dead.

Captain Taylor said he had been working on new information concerning the case for the past month and that certain phases of the investigation involved Rinaldo.

The murder of Taylor has been one of the most baffling crimes with which Los Angeles police have been confronted. At various times several men have "confessed" they had killed the director but their "confessions" have always been disproved.

PEN FIRE PROBER

H. H. Griswold, Ohio state welfare director, is the first to begin a probe into the Columbus prison tragedy.

CHIEFS OF FEDERAL PRISONS WARNED OF DANGERS FROM FIRE

Precautions Urged In Overcrowded U. S. Penitentiaries

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Following the horror at Ohio State Penitentiary, Sanford Bates, superintendent of federal prisons, today wired all federal prison wardens to make certain that all precautions are being taken against fire and to see that prisoners and guards are properly instructed as to action in case of disaster.

"Protection against fire, and the necessary steps to assure safety to prisoners and to prevent escapes in case of conflagrations are largely left to the wardens, who are directly in charge," Bates said.

"However, we are asking the wardens a few questions and calling their particular attention to their responsibilities as precautionary measures. General instructions on the subject have been issued from Washington. The wardens are expected to hold fire drills and the guards are expected to know just what to do should fires break out."

Bates said he believed that in all the federal prisons the wardens and guards were well prepared to act in case of emergencies. Nevertheless he indicated the lesson of the horrible catastrophe at the Columbus prison must be taken to heart by all prison authorities throughout the country to guard against a repetition.

Undoubtedly the crowded condition in the Ohio penitentiary was partially responsible for the heavy casualty list. The same or even worse conditions exist in the large federal prisons.

The six federal institutions were built to house 6,775 prisoners. The population of these prisons and reformatories April 1 was 11,896, nearly 100 per cent overcrowded. Admittedly this creates a serious fire as well as disciplinary hazard and places the wardens at an extreme disadvantage in controlling the inmates.

In addition to the prisoners in federal institutions the government has 13,565 persons quartered in county jails and state prisons and 288 in road camps, bringing total number of government prisoners to 25,659. The majority of them are serving terms for prohibition and narcotic violations.

Indicating overcrowded conditions are the following official figures:

Prison	Capac.	Popu.
Atlanta	1,580	2,758
McNeill Island, Wash.	558	1,958
Leavenworth	1,640	3,461
Leavenworth Annex	1,500	1,587
Alderson Reformatory	500	420
Chillicothe Reform.	1,000	1,495

Owing to overcrowded conditions, many of the federal prisoners are idle all or part of the time, since the prison industrial institutions, such as duck and shoe plants, are not adequate to keep all busy.

WILL APPOINT BOARD TO HELP OFFICIALS; DEATH TOLL NOW 318

Conflicting Testimony Heard By Investigators; Fate Of Warden Thomas Not Decided; Three More Will Die.

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—While long lines of sorrow-stricken relatives sadly and tearfully wended their way through the huge improvised morgue at the state fair ground here, where the 317 convict victims of the nation's greatest prison fire lie side by side in the cold and forbidding place of death, the governor's investigating body today continued its exhaustive probe into the Ohio state penitentiary holocaust of Monday evening.

Meanwhile, steps towards relief from the alarming prison situation had been officially taken. Governor Myers Y. Cooper announced that he would appoint a commission of five prominent Ohioans to act as an advisory board to help him solve the prison problem.

The death toll in the greatest disaster of its kind in the history of the nation, increased to 318 when one of the 231 injured prisoners died today. For three others it is only a matter of time. They can't recover, prison hospital attendants declared.

Responsibility for the terrible tragedy remains clouded by the testimony of witnesses who appeared before the commonwealth's probing committee. One thing is certain, however, most of the witnesses admitted that the appalling catastrophe might have been averted if prompt action had been taken.

The probe today centered around two questions. They are:

Will Warden P. E. Thomas be suspended and perhaps ultimately discharged?

Why was there so much delay in releasing the convicts in the burning cell block?

Captain Joan Hall, 71-year-old guard at the penal institution, in testifying before the governor's investigating body, which is holding its session within the very walls of the criminal-inhabited colony, denied that he had forbidden Guard Thomas Watkins, about 60, to open the doors and the way to freedom for the convicts.

"My only orders," Hall said, "were 'get those men out of there.'"

The convicts were trapped in the individually-locked cells because Watkins, according to the man's own admissions, had delayed in opening the corridor door to allow two other guards, who had the keys to the individual cells, into the tiers to release the prisoners.

"Captain Hall had ordered me 'Don't open that door,'" said Watkins. "I couldn't disobey my superior officer."

Captain Hall, when he resumed the witness chair, denied having given such an order, and the testimony of two other guards partially vindicated the aged and hollow-eyed captain.

One guard told Attorney General Bettman that he had obtained his position as guard after he had been dismissed from the Columbus police force for selling liquor.

Bettman, members of his staff, and John J. Chester, Jr., Franklin County's young prosecutor, combatted the ruins of the devastated G and H cell block today for a clue to the fire's origin.

Testimony which so far has been admitted to the records indicated that defective wiring had caused the fire. Oil soaked wood in the tiers in which concrete blocks had been set, added fuel to the fire, and caused the following smoke, which claimed more lives than the actual flames of the fire.

"Testimony so far points to gross negligence on the part of certain members of the penitentiary force," said the attorney general.

CANDIDATE FAVORS DRY MODIFICATION STATEMENT CLAIMS

Frelinghuysen Bids For Liberal Vote In New Jersey

NEWARK, N. J., April 23.—Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from New Jersey, today issued an announcement in which he declared that he was for modification of the prohibition laws so that "those who desire to use alcoholic beverages should be allowed to do so under conditions of national control which would eliminate the element of private profit and prevent the return of the saloon."

Frelinghuysen declared in his statement that although he voted for the Volstead act and for the 18th amendment, ten years of experience with the study of prohibition have modified his views. He explained that while he is satisfied that the dry laws have destroyed the open saloon they have "developed new and grave evils which the public is familiar with."

Frelinghuysen said, "I believe that any practical change in the policy of prohibition must ultimately come through a change in the constitution. I will vote, if elected, to submit to the people through the method provided by the constitution any resolution, proposition, amendment or amendment of the 18th amendment which will carry out the principles heretofore stated, namely, national control, elimination of private profit and the prevention of the saloon."

"While I personally believe any attempt to modify the Volstead act will become involved in long litigation as to its constitutionality and would lead to confusion without solving the problem, nevertheless I will vote for any modification if it embodies the principles which have previously stated."

"If elected, I shall support all reasonable measures for the enforcement of the law as long as the 18th amendment and the Volstead law are in effect."

PUBLIC UTILITY STOCKS LEAD RISE

NEW YORK, April 23.—The public utility stocks were the leaders in the forward movement of price at the opening of the market today. Standard Gas moved up 1/2 point to 127 3/4; U. S. Steel up 3/8 to 192 3/8; Radio Keith up 3/4 to 4 3/8; Industrial Alcohol up 2 to 9 5/8; General Electric up 1/2 to 9 1/2.

Railroad sold up 1/4 at 68, for 10,000 shares. General Motors was up 1/2 at 51 1/2; U. S. Steel up 3/8 to 192 3/8; Radio Keith up 3/4 to 4 3/8; Industrial Alcohol up 2 to 9 5/8; General Electric up 1/2 to 9 1/2.

Large crowds still surge against the police lines which have been thrown around the penitentiary about a square from the walls.

More than 7,000 telegrams were sent out from the penitentiary to relatives of prisoners yesterday. The number also included stories of the fire by newspapermen.

The Detroit Times, an International News Service newspaper, sent photographers and reporters here via airplanes.

YOUTHS CONFESS TO DOUBLE SLAYING IN NEVADA MINE CAMP

Held In Cleveland;
Father Of One Is
One Of Victims

CLEVELAND, April 23.—The brutal murders of Joseph A. Morlock, of South Euclid Village, and Herbert Hulsey, a mining companion, in a Nevada gold mining cabin, today had been unfolded to local authorities by the son of the local man and a Cortland, O., youth.

The two youths, Joseph A. Morlock, Jr., 25, and Kenneth Carter, 24, yesterday told two separate stories to police and allegedly confessed to their parts in the slaying, which they said occurred two months ago. Carter was a partner of the Morlocks in the gold prospecting venture.

The two killings occurred, the two youths are alleged to have confessed, within three hours. They said they were surprised by the elder Morlock and Hulsey while searching a cabin at the Morlock mine hoping to find money. Hulsey was clubbed and choked to death, and Morlock was shot.

Young Morlock told his story of the murders quietly and with no evident signs of emotion or excitement. He gave the history of the mining ventures and told how he and his father had staked out a claim in the Nevada hills last July.

They returned to Cleveland for more capital in November, young Morlock said, and then started back with them. Both youths told police that the father was cruel, made them suffer unnecessary hardships and refused to give them money for food or clothing.

Desperate for money, young Morlock and Carter planned to take some money from a safe in one of the cabins, they said. Hulsey surprised the two and in the fight which followed, Carter beat Hulsey over the head with a club, tied a handkerchief around his throat and choked him to death, according to the alleged confession.

They said they continued their search for money and were surprised again, this time by Morlock's father. Young Morlock said that he shot his father twice in the stomach, according to police.

Having secured some blank checks, Morlock and Carter drove to Salt Lake City where they traced the father's signature on a check and cashed it for $800. They said they returned to Cleveland by train.

Morlock was arrested at Carter's home in Cortland last Thursday and Carter was taken into custody yesterday at Warren. Both are to be sent to Nevada to face trial.

SAVED HIS MONEY

Clarence Fish, 37, was out of work in Pittsburgh. He had $15,000 invested in railroad bonds which he did not desire to disturb—therefore, he turned bandit. Pittsburgh detectives say he naively told them, Fish says he has a wife and five children in Steubenville.

COFF WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 23.—Ill health was given today as the reason for the withdrawal of U. S. Senator Guy D. Coff, of West Virginia, as a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself.

Announcement of Senator Coff's withdrawal was made here by Walter S. Hallinan, Republican national committeeman for West Virginia.

AIR PASSENGERS KILLED IN CRASH

LONDON, April 23.—The Royal Air Force plane which carried the Prince of Wales from Khartoum to Cairo a few days ago crashed at Helopolis today, killing all its occupants, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Cairo.

The prince had utilized the plane for part of his journey back to England from his hunting tour in the African jungles.

SIDELIGHTS ON OHIO PENITENTIARY FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—Ten "life-terms" are known to have perished in the Ohio penitentiary holocaust. All were doing time for first or second degree murders.

Coroner J. A. Murphy refused to deny reports that several convicts had committed suicide rather than face death with the flames and smoke.

Prisoners who died in the fire were from fifty-eight of Ohio's eighty-eight counties.

FAVORS PRESIDENT VETOING HUGE BILL FOR WAR VETERANS

Indiana Solon Says "Spending Spree" Must Be Curbed

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Backing President Hoover's warning that the federal treasury is dangerously near a deficit, Representative Will R. Wood (R) of Indiana declared the president would be justified in vetoing the pending Johnson bill increasing benefits to World War veterans $100,000,000 a year.

"If I were president I wouldn't hesitate to veto that bill," said Wood, reviewing the light of administration leaders to curb a "spending spree" by congress.

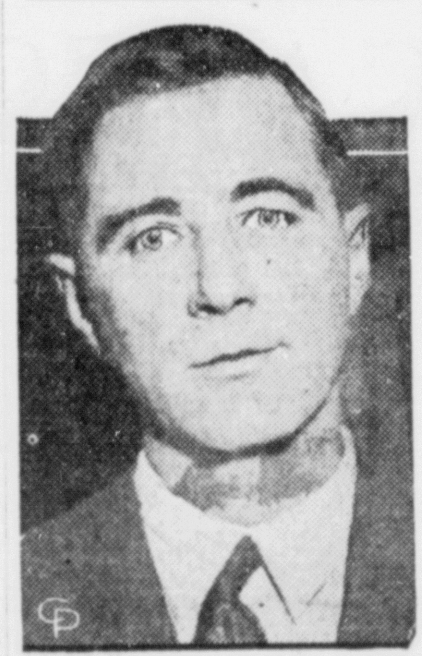

"We will soon be spending a billion dollars a year on the veterans' bureau," said Wood. "Plans had been made to increase veterans' benefits, but the Johnson bill goes far beyond the amount contemplated. And if the Rankin bill passes the cost will be lifted $300,000,000."

Thus far congress has kept under the budget of President Hoover, Wood said.

Congressional committees, however, have reported bills authorizing appropriations of more than $400,000,000, he said.

"Members with no responsibility in making appropriations think it will be a fine thing back home if they can get an appropriation authorized," he said. "Their argument is, 'pass the bill and put the matter up to the appropriations committee.'"

ROBBER IS HERO

"Big Jim" Morton, notorious Cleveland bank robber and gunman, is one of the heroes of the Columbus, O., prison disaster. He is recovering from suffocation and exhaustion, after releasing more than a score of fellow convicts from their burning cells.

COUNTER ATTACK IS LAUNCHED BY WETS BEFORE COMMITTEE

Rebuttal Witnesses Led By Dupont To Give Testimony

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Spokesmen for the nation's leading wet organizations today took over the spotlight in the house judiciary committee's long hearings on bills to repeal the eighteenth amendment, prepared to open two days of rebuttal hearings.

Pierre S. Dupont, Wilmington, Delaware industrialist and leader in the fight for repeal, led the counter-offensive of the wets, with Miss Elizabeth Harris, Washington lawyer, and Major General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the Yankee division in France, following.

Managers of the anti-prohibition forces were prepared to present two famous football coaches—Bill Roper of Princeton and Tad Jones of Yale—to the committee to answer the arguments of Coaches "Hurry Up" of Michigan and Alonzo Stagg of Chicago.

Members of congress may also be called by the wets if they need reserves during the rebuttal testimony.

As a leader in the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, Dupont appeared before the committee during the early stages of its hearings.

Attacking the eighteenth amendment as an invasion of the personal liberties guaranteed its citizens, Dupont demanded submission of a resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment to state constitutional conventions composed of delegates elected by the people solely on the prohibition issue.

BROTHER MUST PAY DAMAGES TO SISTER

TIFFIN, O., April 23.—A verdict was on record here today calling upon Roman Falter to pay his sister, Miss Gertrude Falter, 17, of Bloomville, $2,000 as a result of injuries she received during an auto accident that occurred while she was riding in her brother's car.

The verdict was announced in Common Pleas Court Tuesday. Miss Falter's original claim was for $15,000.

FOUR SLAIN IN INDIAN REVOLT

LONDON, April 23.—Four Indian police guards were shot and killed today by Indian Nationalists in a raid on the Penny police station, near Chittagong, it was stated in dispatches from Calcutta to the evening newspapers.

The Indians raided the place in search of arms. They took the police unawares, and were driven back only after a sharp conflict. The raiders also are believed to have suffered a number of casualties.

The TORRID ZONE STEEL FURNACE is gas-tight and dust-tight because it is riveted HOMES heated by a steel Torrid Zone are conspicuously clean and bright. From its sealed seams no smoke or fumes can ever escape to play havoc with your furnishings, your temper or your health.

For just as your hot water boiler is made pressure-tight by hot-riveting and cold-calking ... so the steel Torrid Zone is made gas, smoke and dust-tight.

Rivets glue steel to steel in a Lennox Torrid Zone to keep dust and coal gas in their place. Offensive odors around the house following a trip to the furnace room or when you've banked the fire, become a thing of the past. You'd be surprised to find how much cleaner and more healthful your home can be.

The Torrid Zone Furnace is an economical furnace. It produces from 10% to 20% more heat from the fuel used, hence uses less fuel than other furnaces. Many home owners report a yearly fuel saving of from $30 to $50.

Burns soft coal, coke, hard coal, oil, lignite or gas more efficiently than any other furnace.

Two other winter inside problems are well taken care of by the Torrid Zone, humidity and ventilation. The proper amount of humidity is supplied by a humidifier that has twice the evaporating area inside the casing of ordinary water pans. Rapid evaporation is also necessary, so it is placed right over the firing doors. Proper air circulation is guaranteed when an authorized Lennox Furnace man makes the installation. Certainly the Torrid Zone makes a well-planned warm air system the most desirable kind of heat that science has yet devised.

Come in and see this furnace. Take a look at its sturdy locomotive grates and "lazy" shaker. Plans and estimates for installation will be furnished. Also free engineering service from the factory on special problems. Made by the LENNOX FURNACE COMPANY, SYRACUSE, New York—Marshalltown, Iowa—Toronto, Canada.

CITY OFFICIALS SEE LIGHT PLANT

Members of City Commission and other city officials left on an unheralded motor trip Wednesday morning for Hamilton, O., to inspect the municipally owned electric light and power plant in that city.

Included in the party were Commissioners H. L. Blinder, H. M. Fisher and Jacob Kany; City Manager M. C. Smith, City Auditor H. A. Higgins and City Solicitor William Miller. Commissioners F. M. Chambliss and E. E. Lighthiser were unable to make the trip.

It is understood the commission intends to visit various Ohio cities where municipal light plants are in operation to accumulate data as to whether the venture is generally a profitable one for a city.

GOOD SEATS LEFT

Advance sale of tickets for "The Poor Nut," the college comedy to be presented by the junior class of Xenia Central High School as its annual class play, Thursday and Friday nights in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium, is progressing satisfactorily, but choice seats for both nights are still available. It is announced. The cast held a dress rehearsal Tuesday night.

DISCUSS LIGHTS

The Xenia lighting situation is expected to be a topic for discussion at the bi-monthly meeting of City Commission Thursday night inasmuch as overtures from The Dayton Power and Light Co., seeking a renewal of its contract and franchise with the city are expected to be made soon.

the auxiliary at Foody Post Hall,
Monday evening.

Mrs. Clara Bennett, Mrs. G. N.
Pillsbury, Mrs. Frank Hustmyer and Mrs. Emma McCalmont were appointed to serve as the Memorial Day committee.

A report of hospital and welfare work was given by Mrs. Walter Dean. Mrs. Joseph King was awarded a prize of a gold pen and pencil for selling the most jelly for the auxiliary.

The hostess committee, which consisted of Mrs. Ohmer Tate and Miss Mary Foody, served a dainty refreshment course.

BRIDE-ELECT HONORED WITH MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER.

For the pleasure of her sister,
Miss Dorothy Fogle of Springfield, whose marriage to Mr. Gilbert Weeks also of Springfield, will be an event of May 1, Mrs. C. C. Es-terline delightfully entertained with a miscellaneous shower at her home on N. Detroit St., this city, Tuesday evening.

Games and contests were in play during the evening. There were about twenty-four guests present.
Mrs. Esterline's home was beautifully decorated with early spring flowers.

There were guests present from Springfield, Yellow Springs, Dayton and Middletown. The honor guest received many lovely and useful gifts.

XENIAN SPEAKS AT AFFAIRS IN FLORIDA

Mrs. H. E. Eavey, who has been spending the last few weeks in Ft.
Myers, Florida, has been guest speaker at a number of charming social affairs held by the religious organizations in that locality.

Mrs. Eavey was a guest at a meeting held by the Vandalla Literary Society at Seminole Lodge, with Mrs. Thomas A. Edison as hostess, and took part in the program. Mrs. Eavey spoke on "Blessed Be the Man" at a handsomer appointed reception given at the Elk's Club by the "Women's Bible Study League." Mrs. Eavey, who is the founder of the League, was also a guest of honor at a beautifully appointed luncheon, given by Mrs. Henry E. Stevens at her home in Ft. Myers.

Baskets of virtually every kind of flower now blooming in Ft.
Myers adorned the tables and the spacious rooms and porches. Following the luncheon an informal talk was given by the honor guest.
Mrs. Eavey has been conducting study classes three times each week for the Women's Bible Study League at the Heitman Club House and was assisted in the work by Mr. Eavey during his stay in Florida. Mrs. Eavey returned home last week but Mrs. Eavey remained in Florida for a longer stay.

Young people of the First Reformed Church are asked to meet with Miss Margaret Williams at the church, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock for choir practice. Practice will be dismissed in time for members to attend the junior class play at Central High School.

Mr. Roy D. Inman, Cedarville,
brother of Mrs. L. M. Morton, N.
King St., who underwent a minor operation at the National Military Home Hospital, Dayton, last Friday, is a little improved. Mr. Inman underwent a serious operation at the hospital several weeks ago.

Frank Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson, W. Church St., is ill at his home with the measles.

The Service Class of the Second United Presbyterian Church will hold its regular monthly meeting at the church, Friday evening.
Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson will be the speaker. All members are urged to be present.

Miss Emma Dodd, E. Third St., left last Saturday for Kansas City, where she will spend a month with relatives. She will also visit in Oklahoma, Texas and other points in the southwest before returning home.

OBTAINS BEQUEST

A bequest of $878 to Wilberforce University from the estate of Miss Josephine Y. Kane, was disclosed when the estate was filed for appraisal in the office of the state transfer tax department at New York City Wednesday. Miss Kane died August 10, 1925. Her estate showed a net value of $4,457.

Sues Jack Dempsey's Manager for Alimony

Mrs. Jack Kearns, wife of Jack Dempsey's former manager, is suing Jack Kearns for $500 a month alimony, which she says he agreed to pay her in 1924. This legal battle is intensely interesting to friends of both parties. Jack refers to the plaintiff as "Miss Edith Angel," announcing that she never was his wife.

CORPORATION FORMED TO TAKE OVER XENIA CLOTHING STORE

HEAD CORPORATION

H. M. OWENS

Harold M. Owens has been elected president of The Criterion, Inc., chartered to operate the Criterion clothing store, S. Detroit St., it was announced Wednesday.

Incorporators are Mr. Owens,
Paul G. Fetz, well known Xenia business man and Miss Clara O.
Brien, bookkeeper for the clothing store. Mr. Fetz has been elected vice president of the corporation and Miss O'Brien is secretary and treasurer.

The new corporation absorbs the partnership of Harold M. Owens and the late Robert H. Kingsbury, former joint owners of the Criterion. Miss O'Brien has been associated with the Kingsbury interests for a number of years. Herman Wells and Robert Owens, members of the sales force of the store, are also financially interested in the new corporation. It is announced.

The clothing store will continue to be operated as in the past without change of policy. Mr. Owens will manage the business and Mr.
Fetz will not be actively associated with the operation of the clothing store, retaining his operation of the Fetz Bros. grocery, Detroit and Second Sts.

The Criterion clothing store was established in November 1911 by R.
S. Kingsbury, who operated it for a time in conjunction with his original clothing store, operated under his name on E. Main St. The E. Main St. business was later closed and the Criterion maintained. Still later R. S. Kingsbury withdrew from actual association with the business, retaining his connection as president of a corporation in which his son, the late R. H. Kingsbury and Mr. Owens were interested. Mr. Owens and R.
H. Kingsbury later took over complete ownership of the business and the corporation was dissolved and the firm operated as a partnership.

The death of R. H. Kingsbury in March resulted in organization of the corporation to take over the business. Mr. Owens has been connected with the store since January 15, 1915 and has maintained an active interest in business and civil affairs.

CLARENCE STINE,
FORMER XENIAN,
CLAIMED BY DEATH

Word has been received here of the death of Clarence E. Stine, 56, former Xenian and son of the late J. D. Stine, former publisher of the Xenia Torchlight, and Laura Stine, who died at Bryan Memorial Hospital at Lincoln, Neb., April 11.
Death was due to an illness which he had contracted in Brazil, S. A., where he had lived for a number of years.

Mr. Stine was born in Xenia, October 11, 1875. He moved to Superior, Neb., with his parents and sisters in 1884 and embarked into business with his father in the publication of the Superior Journal, which they purchased from the firm of Buck and Pickard.

He served as Postmaster at Superior for eleven years. At the expiration of his term in 1916, he accepted a position in Sioux City, Iowa, which he resigned shortly after to become secretary-treasurer of the Brazilian Meat Co. of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, a subsidiary of the Vestey Packing interests.
This position he kept for nine years, returning to Nebraska in 1925 to become state purchasing agent under Governor McMullen.

A year later he returned to Brazil as manager of the Rio de Janeiro agency of Armour and Co., retaining this position until October, 1929, when, due to failing health, he submitted his resignation and returned to the states in a vain attempt to regain his health.
Since his return he and Mrs. Stine had made their home with their son Elwood, at Lincoln.

Besides his widow and son he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Fred Rawson, Pernambuco, Brazil; one granddaughter, Nancy Virginia
Stine and two sisters, Mrs. Anna
Nesbitt and Mrs. Louise A. Powell, both of Superior.

Funeral services were held at the First Presbyterian Church
April 16 and interment was made in the Superior Evergreen Cemetery.

AWARDED DAMAGES BASED ON ACCIDENT

For injuries suffered when he was struck by an auto driven by Clarence Luck at the street intersection known as "Five Points" shortly after midnight last January 1, Clyde Lute was awarded $315 damages by Municipal Judge
E. Dawson Smith Wednesday morning following a trial which consumed a greater part of the morning session of court.

Lute, who received a broken right leg just below the knee, was badly bruised over the body and still walks on crutches, had sued Luck for $500 damages.

Lute was walking across Cincinnati Ave. when he was knocked down by Luck's machine, which turned onto Cincinnati Ave. from W. Second St.

GIRL SCOUTS of America

Bluebell Troop, No. 1, Girl Scouts of America, held its regular meeting in the assembly room of the Court House Tuesday afternoon. Plans were made for a hike to be taken next Tuesday afternoon and members of the troop are asked to meet at the Court House at the usual time.

PAUL G. FETZ

H. M. Owens is president and Paul G. Fetz vice-president of The Criterion, Inc., a new corporation formed here to absorb the partnership holdings of H. M. Owens and the late Robert H. Kingsbury in the operation of the Criterion clothing store, S. Detroit St. Miss Clara O'Brien is secretary and treasurer of the new corporation.

STUDENT ORDAINED TO MINISTRY; ENDS PRESBYTERY MEET

Calvin Welmer, senior at Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, Pa., was ordained to the Gospel Ministry of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., at the adjourned meeting of the Dayton Presbytery held at the Cedarville Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening, closing the two day session of the Presbytery at the First Presbyterian Church, Xenia. The meeting was open to the public.

The Rev. Charles L. Plymate, D.
D., new moderator of the Dayton Presbytery, presided and propounded the constitutional questions. The Rev. Gavin Reilly of Bradford read the Scripture followed by prayer by the Rev. R. M.
Fox, retiring moderator of the presbytery.

Dr. W. R. McChesney, member of the Reformed Church at Cedarville was seated as a corresponding member of the Dayton Presbytery and offered the ordination prayer for Mr. Welmer, at the time of the laying on of the hands of Presbytery.

Delivery of the charge to Mr.
Welmer ordained minister, was made by Dr. W. P. Harriman, pastor of the Cedarville Church. The Rev. Mr. Welmer pronounced the benediction, as the first official act after his ordination.

FATHER OF XENIAN CLAIMED BY DEATH

Calvin R. Van Tress, 57, father of Mrs. Alonzo Peele, Fairground Road, died at his home on Columbus St., Wilmington, Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. A stroke of apoplexy, which he suffered a week ago, caused his death.

Mr. Van Tress was the son of the late Richard and Deborah Van Tress and was born at Oakland, June 8, 1842. He was a member of the G. A. R. and the Friends Church at Wilmington. He was married twice.

He is survived by three children,
Mrs. Peele of Xenia, Mrs. Nina McPherson of Wilmington and a son Calvin Van Tress of New Burlington; and a sister, Mrs. Clara K.
Lewis of Newburg, Ore.

Funeral services will be held at the Friends Church, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be made in Sugar Grove Cemetery.

HUSBANDS IN PEN

MARYSVILLE, O., April 21. —
Persistent requests of at least twenty inmates of the State Reformatory for Women here for news relative to certain prisoners at Ohio penitentiary, following this week's tragedy, resulted in the disclosure that the husbands of these women were serving terms in the penitentiary.

CLUB LEADER HAS MEETING IN XENIA

Miss Edna Callahan of Ohio
State University, Columbus, met with leaders of the 4-H Clothing Clubs of Greene County at the Farm Bureau offices in the Post Office, Tuesday morning and afternoon.

Miss Callahan discussed to leaders the matter of the clothing project, which will be offered girls of the 4-H Clubs of Greene County, this summer. Gifts girls like to make, which include useful gifts, gifts to wear or carry, play gifts and summer clothing were outlined and discussed at the meeting Tuesday.

Miss Callahan reported that each gift would be a bit more difficult to make than the preceding one.
She presented many interesting illustrations with her talks, throughout the day, which proved beneficial to the leaders.

FOUND GUILTY HERE ON LARCENY CHARGE

Alleged to have stolen 125 chickens valued at $161 from Osman Glass, near Jamestown, last January 23, Ora Don Coe, 46, Fayette County poultry dealer, was convicted of burglary and larceny by a jury in Common Pleas Court which returned its verdict at 12:15 p. m.
Wednesday after deliberating for an hour and a half. Passage of sentence was deferred for the customary three days, pending the filing of a motion for a new trial.

Of the 125 chickens stolen,
Sheriff Ohmer Tate recovered 112 in Clark County after the fowl had been sold to a dealer in New Paris.

LONG BEFORE the choice leaves of golden Turkish and velvety brown
Domestic tobacco are selected for Camel Cigarettes, nature's own alchemy has worked a miracle in them that no effort of man can hope to duplicate.

Every tiny leaf-cell is irradiated—stored full of goodness by the clean, pure vigor of the sun!

Our share in the making of Camels is to see that all of the fragrance, mildness, mellowness, aroma—in a word all of the natural goodness of these sun-ripened tobaccos is preserved and developed—then to combine them into the smooth, delightful harmony of the famous Camel blend, and manufacture them into cigarettes by the most modern methods known to the industry.

You can taste the natural goodness in every delicious puff of a Camel Cigarette.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

NATURAL VERSUS SPIRITUAL—The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned.—1 Cor. 2:14.

EVERY OTHER EVENING

American home life seems to many observers to be breaking up. They see the people running around to all kinds of entertainments and diversions, and they ask what has become of the quiet home evenings of former years, where the folks sat down and read the newspapers and good books, the children studied their school lessons, the neighbors came in to call, pleasant games were played, and an instructive home life was enjoyed?

In spite of improved medical science, degenerative diseases are increasing. And yet people work shorter hours. The trouble must be that they do not take time enough for rest and quiet. They are on the go too much.

They need more of the quiet home evenings of former years. It would be an excellent plan if people were willing to spend every other evening at home. This would give time for reading that would make them more intelligent. It would give them a better hold over their children. And the peaceful hours, enlivened by pleasant radio features, would send them out to work the next day better fitted to deal with its problems, and with less exhaustion of the reserves of health.

It may be said that such a plan would prevent people from joining in the activities of useful organizations. But many people join so many organizations that they can give but very little time and attention to any one of them. They would better join merely one or two, and put some real effort into them.

It was quiet home life after work was done, that produced the great qualities of the former generations. If our folks spent every other evening at home, they would have more money in the bank and solve many problems.

AZTEC REVIVAL

The interesting announcement is made that hereafter the regular curriculum of the Mexican national preparatory school will contain courses in the Aztec language, which is still spoken by the remnants of the Aztec race, but which the "gente decente" of Mexico heretofore have not deigned to recognize. One reason for assigning it a place in the program of the national preparatory school is said to be to give Mexicans some knowledge of a tongue from which many of their everyday words are derived. Another result will be to familiarize them with a language that is beautiful in itself. Aztec is a primitive speech flowing with "X's." A group of Aztec children talking it has been likened to chirping birds. The proud place it occupied in Mexico during the Aztec ascendancy in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries knows it no more; but everywhere on the map of Mexico it survives in place names. When Cortes overthrew the Aztec empire in 1521, Spanish replaced Aztec as the polite language of the country. Castilian and Aztec are again on speaking terms.

Masked bandits recently held up a banker's automobile in Ireland and got away with $40,000. Thus American civilization spreads throughout the earth.

The idea seems to be that the longer the London conference lasts, the longer Mr. MacDonald remains in office.

Another planet has been discovered. Wonder whether or not it has a firm problem.

Another reason why we should stay out of the League of Nations: It might butt in and tell us we must suppress banditry, as it has done with Bulgaria.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

TAFT'S DREAM

The late Chief Justice Taft was right in looking to the day when the supreme court of the United States would be housed in a splendid building of its own. Today the court sits, as it has for many years, in a room in the capitol which was once the chamber of the senate. Not a large room, but big enough when we had fewer states in the union and fewer senators. Dignity and prestige are wondrous assets and atmosphere means a lot. The highest court in the land, and one of the great tribunals of the world, ought to have a setting appropriate to its importance.

FACES THAT TELL

Have you studied the faces of folks in street cars, buses, trains, motor cars? Have you looked closely at the people you pass on the streets? Life must be a struggle, difficult, hard, for so many. Is it 50 per cent grief and 50 per cent happiness? Or is the grief out of proportion to the happiness? Faces, expressions, especially eyes, tell the story of life. One bears on evil responsibility when he has said a thing or done a thing to help write the story of grief on the face of another.

OVER-USE

The average and somewhat excited inhabitant of earth over-uses one of his handiest gifts. He talks too much. It is easy to talk. Muscles that produce speech take on facility at such a rapid pace and grow pliable with use. And so many talk with their muscles instead of their minds. Great victories are won by silence. We all have regrets for the things we might have said and didn't. We have more regrets for the things we did say.

LOOKING CLOSELY

And now one learns that the new planet was not discovered by the telescope but by the microscope. It seems that after plates had been made by the telescopic camera, an examination under the microscope made the real discovery. Well, we often look over the fence and far away to find something when we ought to use the microscope close at home.

PUTTING OFF

How many times we are warned not to put off until tomorrow what we can do today. Not always such good advice. Trying to do everything today, in a hurry, results in much bad work. Better put off many things. Don't be afraid to put some things off until tomorrow. Just be sure that you don't put off the wrong things.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS
WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

What can one use as an invisible ink and how can it be developed? A weak solution of starch in boiling water can be developed by applying a diluted tincture of iodine. This will disappear at once on warming, and slowly on standing. It can be restored and faded any number of times.

IN DISPUTE

Kindly give me the source of the statement, "If a man build a better mouse-trap than his neighbor the world will make a beaten path to his door."

This quotation "If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door," is generally accredited to Ralph Waldo Emerson. Mrs. Sarah S. B. Yiele credited the quotation to Emerson in her "Borrowings" (1899) asserting that she copied it in her hand-book from a lecture delivered by Emerson. However, Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, famous lexicographer, upholds the statement of Elbert Hubbard's claim to its authorship.

PROPRIETARY

What does the abbreviation "Pty." used in the names of English concerns represent?

This is not an unusual part of a title in the Dominions and represents the word "proprietary." A J. Pack, commercial secretary of the British Embassy, informs this bureau.

COMPTROLLER GENERAL

Who is the present comptroller general of the United States? When and by whom was he appointed, and for how long?

J. R. McCarl, of Nebraska, was appointed to this office July 1, 1929, by President Warren G. Harding. The post was created by the Budget and Accounting act of June 10, 1921, and provides for a term of 15 years, at the end of which the comptroller general is not eligible for reappointment.

CIVIL SERVICE RULES

Can a person who has been convicted of a law violation dismissed for it ever hold a government position again provided he is eligible to take the civil service examination?

Persons who have been separated from the government service for delinquency or misconduct are not permitted to file applications for civil service examinations for one year from the date of such separation. Secretary John T. Doyle of the United States civil service commission explains. Cases, however, are judged on their individual merits, and such applicants must submit a detailed account of the circumstances for the commission to review and advise them in the premises.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, New York — Did you ever hear the story of Barrymore and the Buttercakes, Charley?

You know, who John Barrymore is, of course? Well, back in the good old days when Jack was knocking around town trying to make a living at everything except acting, he roomed with an artist, a chap unknown to fame.

One morning, as I recall the yarn, he yawned forth from their furnished room headed for the nearest Childs. Net capital one dime.

The artist chap entered first, ordered buttercakes and coffee and when he had consumed one cake and a half and had his share of the coffee, he signalled to Barrymore out of the sidewalk.

"I rushed Jack with a fake telegram. The artist read it, grabbed his hat and fled. Barrymore took his place at the table, finished the meal, paid the check and fared forth in the manner befitting a gentleman."

Yes, Charles, you're right. The pancakes were three for a dime. It was the buttercakes that were three for a nickel.

And don't you dare come back at me and say they were two for a nickel. An earnest Christian can be pushed only so far!

FLAVOR

Realizing the "social flavor" that the event will take on, and not wishing to take any chances, the New York World has signed up a gentleman to do their daily main yachting story, who answers to the name of Mortlake Wetmore Mortimer. Worthily.

The Boys call him "Mike."

"ADVENTURE STORY" SENATORS FEEL THAT PIONEERING SPIRIT STILL IS ALIVE IN UNITED STATES

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senators John B. Kendrick, of Wyoming, and Key Pittman, of Nevada, are congressmen's typical "adventure story" pioneers. The frontier they knew was the real thing. Its spaces were indeed wide open. Pistols cracked. Spurs rattled. Movie stuff—when it was the genuine article.

At 73, Senator Kendrick still is the "old cattleman." Senator Pittman panned gold in Alaska. The six-shooter was law when he got there. Later he helped to organize Nome's "constituted form of government" and became the first prosecuting attorney on the polar side of the Yukon.

Does much of the pioneering spirit survive in the present generation of Americans? It seems to me that modern conveniences have so softened the race as to have unfitted it for an existence that its sires thrived on. True, the young man of today is quite equal to a campaign, as in Flanders-led, fed and given his orders. He has physical courage. He may be an athlete. But has he the stamina, the initiative, the independence and the resistance-to-hardship to create a civilization for himself—like his father before him.

I doubt it.

Three times I have watched attempts to colonize one of the richest regions in South America with settlers from this continent. Tex Rickard led one; Alfalfa Bill Murray a second; Fred Engen the third—a Scandinavian-American, less widely-known than Tex or Alfalfa Bill, but a sturdy Nor-die, with an ambition to found an empire.

Their followers, all told, numbered into the thousands and they quit in thousands—all but the merest handful, who, by sticking, and subsequently prospering exceedingly, proved that there was nothing in the matter with the quality of their human raw material.

These colonization enterprises did call for a start from scratch, and life, for a term of years, in a wilderness. Squatters in our own west were not appalled by such a prospect of half a century ago. Europeans of all sorts, even now, are defying the hardships of the same region where Rickard's, Murray's and Engen's companions deserted them almost immediately upon arrival. No electricity! No plumbing! No movies!

"I'd like Senator Kendrick and Pittman would not have been grieved. But present-day Americans? A tourist agent probably would do well, who succeeded in scraping together a railroad carload of them guaranteed to endure such conditions.

Is the pioneering spirit dead in America? I put this question to Senators Kendrick and Pittman. With one voice they answered, "No," emphatically. "I know Murray personally," said Senator Kendrick. "I doubt if his colonists were well selected. It is worth remembering that by no means all of those who tried our own frontier won success when they reached it. Covered wagons were almost as numerous struggling back toward the eastward as the contingent bound for the western horizon."

"Given a sufficient incentive," said Senator Pittman, "Americans would take to the trail as readily in 1930 as in 1849."

"Pioneering," continued the Tonnepah lawmaker, "simply is a form of gambling, and the American is a born gambler. "However, unless that game is offered to him he cannot play it. "It has not been offered to him lately. Due to the lack of it, he had to play the stock market—not because he preferred the stock market, but because no pioneering was available. "He was perfectly willing to risk his life among hostile Indians for the sake of riches in land, or among the dangers of the Arctic for the sake of riches in gold; he has seen no stake in recent years that invited him to brave pioneering perils. When he does, they will not stop him for a minute."

"To be sure," said the senator, considering his countrymen's apparent coldness toward the undoubted pioneering possibilities of Latin-America, "our folk like to do their gambling uninterfered with."

"There are plenty of opportunities, heaven knows, in Mexico, for example, but the American objects to the government there."

"The absence of any government at all does not annoy him. He always is prepared to take care of himself, with a gun. However, after he has been compelled to shoot someone, he objects to being locked up for it."

Senator Kendrick thinks of the old frontier in terms of cattle, just as Senator Pittman thinks of it in terms of gold nuggets.

"And do you know," he said, "there is more pioneering work still to be done in what is apt to realize. A great deal of it yet remains to be developed—country that not only is hardly scratched, as the saying is, but that we have not even begun to scratch."

"But, curiously enough, it is impossible to get this pioneering done, because of no pioneers to do it."

"Our young people today simply will not stand it."

And yet Senator Kendrick contends that the pioneering spirit is as alive in America today as ever it was.

"I think it is very foolish, if this young man really is as you say, says he does, that you two should stay apart and both be unhappy because of a childish fault, serious as it was."

"I would write to him if I were you and ask him to forgive you your sin as he would want you to forgive him if he had likewise sinned."

ASTORIA, L. I.: I answered your letter some time ago, although I did not print the letter itself. I said that I thought it was "perfectly all right for your wife to decide with whom she should dance, and that it was entirely proper for her to 'break' while dancing with your sister and finish the dance with one of the young men who cut in."

"At the same time, she doesn't have to dance with everyone that asks her unless she cares to."

"VIRGINIA LEE: I can't resist saying that I do not think you are fit to give advice to young folks. What sort of an old crank are you to say to young people that parents have no right to say anything to their children, in regard to their company or their marriage?"

What are parents for if not to advise their children and look out for their interests, and when they KNOW their young people are on the wrong track? I guess parents are supposed to stand back with eyes and mouth shut and let them jump into any fool marriage that comes along. It's plainly indicated that you have never been a parent."

No signature is attached to this letter. I was not aware that I did tell young people that parents had no right to advise them in marriage. I DO maintain, however, that many parents would be more successful in their guidance of their youngsters if they were not quite so free with their advice and criticism."

A parent who keeps close to the young folks and invites confidence by "reasonableness," sympathy and understanding, is much more apt to be able to break up an undesirable alliance than one who is dictatorial and unsympathetic."

WORRIED GREY EYES: Impossible to tell whether the boy friend will care for you four years hence or not. Probably you will have forgotten him by then. It's a pretty safe rule for a girl of 16 to comply with her parents' wishes in the matter of her boy friends."

GLADY'S GLAD: "America's Most Famous Beauty" MANY of my readers have written me of the excellent results they have achieved from the vaseline or castor oil which I advised for use on their eyelashes. I am thrilled by the good news, and they are encouraging to me and to the other members of "Vaseline."

Credit for such accomplishment does not all belong to me. It goes in a large measure to the girls and women who have the tenacity of purpose, the strength of mind, to continue with a treatment until they see results.

A few of the girls who have written me have asked me how they may obtain lashes that "curl" back. You can train your lashes to turn back. If you apply the plain the tasteless castor oil with a tiny vaseline (not the carbollated), or soft brush, don't brush the lashes down toward the cheeks. Brush the lashes upward and back. After a time, they will have been trained to "curl" back. It's very simple, but, of course, takes a little time.

I want to tell these girls who are growing longer and thicker lashes, that they can wear the vaseline or castor oil applied ever so lightly on the upper lashes during the day. The grease makes the lashes glisten and "thrusts" the grease remains on the eyelids, length of them. Even if a little of it will not give an unpretty effect, I do not mean an four you to feel. Of course, you understand load the lashes with grease.

If you do not use a brush to apply the vaseline or castor oil, but put it on with the fingertips, turn the lashes back as you apply the grease, and eventually they will become trained to grow that way. I think the brush is more effective, however.

GLADY'S GLAD: "ANSWERS TO QUERIES" Jay: I advise you to try to remove the scales left by squeezing black heads by the use of plenty of olive oil, or a rich skin food.

Garters: B. P.: Stop wearing tight garters if you think they make your legs thin. Exercise and massage with cocoa butter will help to make them larger.

B. H.: Bag: J. J. H.: Fill a small cheesecloth bag with cup of bran and place it in the "bat" water. This will help to soften the water, and is excellent for the skin."

Diet and Health

Sores On Mouth

MISS L.: Any sore on the lip that does not heal with the usual precautions—keeping it clean, and keeping it covered with a softening ointment—should be investigated by a skin specialist, no matter what your age is. This is true of a sore on any part of the body, but especially around the mouth.

Cancer of the mouth (in fact, all cancers) should stop being a menace when the body is kept in a high chemical condition by the right diet and other hygienic habits, and external irritations prevented from becoming chronic. For instance, irritations in the mouth from a jagged or sharp-edged tooth, an ill-fitting plate, or by repeated biting of the tongue (usually caused by a sharp-edged tooth. A dentist would be able to correct that.)

Another thing that should be avoided is the holding of pins or nails or bits of toothpicks or sharp objects in the mouth. One of the chief causes of cancer of the mouth is smoking or chewing tobacco excessively. Uncleanliness of the mouth and teeth and chronic infections should not be allowed. Little white plaques may be formed in the mouth, especially in those who have bad teeth or do not keep them clean, who smoke incessantly. This condition is known as leukoplakia, and if allowed to continue, not infrequently develops into cancer. I repeat, that those who have leukoplakia or sores develop on the tongue or in the mouth, which do not heal up with in two weeks or so (after the irritating conditions are removed) should immediately seek expert advice. (And remember that expert medical advice doesn't mean any advertising concern or advertisement doctor.) Do not touch them up yourself with nitrate of soda or caustics; these may irritate the condition and be just the wrong thing to do.

"Cancer of the mouth, if treated skillfully and thoroughly, with radium, in its early stages, can nearly always be cured, with little pain or discomfort. Cancer of the mouth spreads early and rapidly to the glands of the neck. The important thing is not to get it in the neck, for then the fight is a serious one." (Fahler.)

Those who would like to have some literature on Cancer should communicate with the American Society for the Control of Cancer, New York committee, 34 East 75th street, New York City.

Dear Doctor: Please tell me what is the cause of yellow spots in the whites of the eyes?

Most normal eyes have a yellow spot on the inner sides of the whites of the eyes, Miss L. This is known as pinguecula. It is probable that what you have is a normal thing which perhaps has been made more pronounced by irritation. Gleason states that these pingueculas should never be interfered with.

Better see an eye specialist to be sure that what you have is normal.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A GIRL whom I will call Miss R. writes me that the first man she ever went with wronged her while they were engaged to be married.

Years afterwards she met a young man who loved her and whom she loved. The first man told her friend about their affair, and the second asked her about it and then left her when he was assured it was true.

This second man always has treated her wonderfully ever since, saying that he still loves her and will never care for anyone else.

His sister met with an auto accident and this girl, being a nurse, took care of her. After seeing this young man in his own home day after day, the girl loved him more than ever.

She wants me to print her letter to warn other girls to keep clean.

"Can you please tell me if I should try and have him come back to me," she writes, "as I know I could make him happy all through life, as I love him dearly? Would it be proper for me to write to him, or tell him that if he forgives me for what I did when I was young and foolish, that such a thing would never happen again?"

I think it is very foolish, if this young man really is as you say, says he does, that you two should stay apart and both be unhappy because of a childish fault, serious as it was."

Confirming rumors which became current directly after the Dayton Stivers basketball team won the state Class A title for the third straight year, announcement has been made by Ohio State University officials that Floyd Stahl, mid-level athletic director at Stivers, has accepted terms of a one-year contract to become associated with the coaching staff at State. All that remains is approval by the athletic board, but this is considered a mere formality.

Our only comment is that Stahl is severing his connection with the Dayton school while his reputation is established. The basketball outlook for Stivers next season is none too promising and there is wisdom in quitting anything while you are ahead.

Stahl will report to Ohio State in September and will coach freshman basketball, the varsity reserves in football and possibly help with freshman baseball. He may also assist Harold Olsen, head basketball coach, in an advisory capacity.

During the four years he has been mentor at Stivers, Stahl's teams have won thirty-eight football games and lost two, while his basketball teams won ninety-eight games and dropped only nine. It is considered likely that Ralph Cutbert, who has been Stahl's assistant for the last three years, will be named his successor. At least he has the inside track for the post.

Now that April Fool Day is safely past, it can be announced with some degree of assurance that E. J. Steele, for the last five years principal and coach of Frankfort High School, Ross County, has signed on the dotted line of a three-year contract to become director of physical education at Wilmington College, succeeding C. W. "Shifty" Bolen, who resigned, effective March 1. It would seem unwise to sign up any high school coach for so long a term as three years but the college officials probably know what they are doing. At least let us hope so.

Looking over that interesting little booklet on girls' athletics, recently issued by the state department of education, it is discovered that the department frowns upon the reigning custom of selecting all-star teams after the end of a season.

All-star teams, the department maintains, tend to distort the true value of the game, lend a false value to individual play, and contribute nothing to the success of the season.

As regards sweaters, caps, pins and other insignia, relative to their desirability as incentives, the department claims these things are awarded mainly because it is traditional to do so.

Some schools have abolished them, spent the money on additional equipment so that more girls could play, offered a richer program, and awards have been forgotten.

This little booklet is certainly a help as a space filler on dull days, this being one. For instance the foreword is written by Dr. J. L. Clifton, state education director, who predicts that the decade from 1930 to 1940 will be an important one in the development of physical education for girls and women.

"These ten years will see athletics for girls made an educational, rather than a commercial or exhibitional, enterprise," he says. "The thousands of girls and women in America should be accorded every opportunity for play, and need to be spared the mistakes which have been made in administering athletics for boys."

BOWLING

Rolling in the Glass B division of the Miami Valley bowling tournament in progress at the Recreation alleys, a team drawn from the Xenia Business Men's League assaulted the pins for a three-game total of 2,529 in the five-man event, recording games of 832, 860 and 837, Tuesday afternoon. Clevelander led the quintet with a series of 550.

In the doubles, two matches were rolled by members of the team. Smith and Davis paired together to score 1,048, Davis having a total of 576. The combination of Clevelander and Chappel rolled 1,002.

Clevelander rolled 539 in the singles and Chappel totalled 528. Clevelander's all-events total was 1,476 while Chappel gathered, 1,476 for his nine games. Tourney scores:

ATTORNEY GENERAL LEARNS CELL BLOCK WAS "FIRE HAZARD"

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—The cell block scene of Monday night's tragedy at Ohio Penitentiary—was "a fire hazard."

That is the opinion of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman who, as special representative of Governor Myers Y. Cooper, made an inspection tour through the ill-fated cell block today.

Bettman, also, characterized the tar-roofing over the cell block as a veritable "fire trap." The heat generated by the flames was so intense that it literally ate the paint off of the cells, he asserted.

Most of the prisoners who lost their lives died from suffocation rather than from burns, Bettman said.

The attorney general today was investigating the reported discovery of two 45-caliber revolver shells in the devastated cell block.

This development recalled the statement of convicts that they heard gun reports during the fire Monday night and that of a prison guard that he heard a muffled sound.

Some state authorities and prison officials were not inclined to attach much significance to the alleged finding of the shells.

They said that a convict might have picked the shells up from near a target which is used by prison guards for regular practice.

National Guard officials on duty at the temporary morgue in the horticultural building, state fair grounds, where the bodies of the dead prisoners were prepared for burial, reported today that a careful examination of all the bodies showed no bullet holes.

This examination was made at the request of Hal H. Griswold, state welfare director, as a result of the claim of convicts that they heard gun shots Monday night.

BALL COMMISSION WILL MEET FRIDAY

Preparatory to the opening of the 1930 softball season in Xenia, scheduled for next Monday night, the Softball Commission of the Xenia Playground Association will meet Friday night to discuss with prospective umpires interpretations of the rules for the games.

Softball games will be governed exclusively by Spaulding rules this summer.

Representatives of the competing teams and all other interested fans are also invited to attend the meeting. Those fans who have voluntarily offered their services to officiate some of the games are particularly urged to be present.

JAIL QUARANTINED DUE TO SMALLPOX

AKRON, O., April 23.—The Summit County Jail and the detention home here were quarantined today following the discovery of three cases of small pox suffered by prisoners in the jail.

The work of criminal court has been halted and will not be resumed until the quarantine has been lifted or the spread of the disease is definitely checked, officials said.

A wholesale vaccination followed the discovery of the disease, and 414 persons felt the prick of the needle. The vaccination included the 179 prisoners in the jail, 215 inmates of the infirmary, sheriffs and other county officials connected with the jail.

Dr. R. H. Markwith, county health commissioner, and his staff are concentrating their efforts on checking the spread of the disease.

TO BUILD TOURIST CAMP AND CABINS

Plans for establishment of a tourist camp on slightly more than an acre of ground on the west side of Dayton Ave., directly opposite the Engle Floral Co., greenhouse, were disclosed Wednesday by H. E. Schmidt, N. King St.

Erection of a filling station and installation of a barbecue stand to attract tourist trade is also planned. Ten or twelve frame, one-room cottages will be built in the rear of the property and between the cottages there will be garages where tourists may keep their autos during their stay at the camp.

The property which is owned by Mr. Schmidt, has a frontage of 168 feet. A double house which occupied the site is being razed to make room for the cottages, barbecue stand and filling station.

This looms as the twenty-second year in which sports writers will call the Detroit team the Tigers when they look more like kittens.

Sports pages are part news and part fiction. The wrestling results come under the head of fiction.

Jack Dempsey may fight Max Schmeling for nothing if Max wins the title. Yeah, six nothings preceded by a figure one.

What these major league ball players evidently need when they go south is less spring training and more court plaster.

An amazing thing is that none of the rookies was bitten by a boll weevil. On second thought, however, it is remembered the weevils concentrate on cotton, their teeth being too tender for ivory.

John McGraw says the modern baseball infield is like a billiard table. But the players still forget their cues.

THWART ALLEGED PLOT TO BREAK FROM PEN; MORE TROOPS CALLED

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—An apparent plan for a wholesale delivery of prisoners from Ohio Penitentiary today resulted in a strengthening of the detail of Ohio National Guardsmen on guard duty inside the walls of the state prison.

When Acting Captain H. E. Lockhart, in charge of the prison guards, early today learned that about 500 colored convicts, who were housed in a frame dormitory on the east side of the prison yard, were planning a break, prison authorities issued a call for additional troops.

Company F, of the 372nd Infantry, and the Second Battalion, both of Columbus and made up of colored troops, responded.

As a result, more than 1,100 uniformed state militiamen are on guard duty at the penitentiary.

The colored convicts, it was stated, planned to storm either the northeast or southwest gate between 4 a. m. and 6 a. m. Their plans were thwarted by the action of the prison officials.

THROUGH THE MICROPHONE

BY BROADCASTER

NEW YORK, April 23.—Two latest additions to art entertainers—the Two Famous Hatters Orchestra—made its bow Thursday, April 17, over WJZ and a network of stations throughout the country, is a real mystery group.

This orchestra, which is sponsored by the Knox Hat Co. and Dunlap and Co., is actually nationally famous, and will repeat its performance under its chosen pseudonym every Thursday evening at the same time. The incognito performance was suggested by the orchestra leader, who combines the rare modesty which scorns personal publicity and an overwhelming confidence in his radio following which, he declared, would recognize his interpretations of popular dance melodies without announcement of his name.

The leader and musicians of the Two Famous Hatters Orchestra have many times been acclaimed by radio fans. In addition, they entertain nightly in one of the most exclusive of New York's restaurants.

Even the selection of the orchestra was shrouded in mystery. A group of music critics and the officers of the two organizations sponsoring it listened to a half dozen of the most popular dance orchestras now on the air. As each was heard the test-audience made notes. At the close of the hearing a secret ballot was taken and the present orchestra, later christened the Two Famous Hatters Orchestra at the suggestion of its popular leader was the overwhelming choice.

Real men, many of them expert cooks, find interest in these broadcasts according to letters received by the Radio Household Institute, which goes on the air daily at 11:15 a. m. from Station WEAF in New York.

Even so accomplished a cook as S. B. Richardson Jr., chef of a government private railroad coach in the service of the Bureau of Mines finds radio broadcasts on cookery helpful to him. Carrying distinguished guests from one part of the country to another, Mr. Richardson is often taxed to find new and intriguing dishes to offer. His car is equipped with a radio set and as he travels about the country he tunes in on household recipes. "One never knows too much about this endless art to learn from others," modestly observes Mr. Richardson.

APPEARS IN SHOW

MISS HELEN GRAHAM

Miss Helen Graham will be seen by patrons of the minstrel revue being staged at St. Brigid school auditorium Wednesday and Thursday nights by the St. Brigid Players under direction of J. T. McCann, Dayton. Miss Graham appears in the minstrel chorus and also has a part in "Pinch Hitting," a sketch in which she will appear with Misses Alsetta Gorham, Kathryn Graham, Ellen McCurran and Katherine Keble. The performance will begin each evening at 8:15 o'clock.

He's New Giant

Walter Roettger, outfielder, will cavort in the garden for the New York Giants this summer instead of the Cardinals, following his trading by the St. Louis club to the Gotham outfit for George Fischer and Eddie Farrell.

PLUM AND CHERRY CROPS HERE DESTROYED; SNOW FALL NOTED

Although the extent of the damage to fruit crops as a result of an intense frost Tuesday night could not be judged with any degree of accuracy Wednesday morning, fruit growers predicted that the loss to the plum and cherry crops would probably be severe and that apples, if they survive, will at least be retarded.

The frost Tuesday night approximated a freeze and another frost of even greater intensity is forecast for Wednesday night by the United States weather bureau.

Early observations of fruit growers in various parts of the county Wednesday indicated that some of the cherry and plum blossoms had been nipped and continued cold weather Wednesday night is expected to destroy

HEIRESS TAKES NEWSBOY FOR MATE

Miss Vivienne Huntington, heiress of a New York architect, snapped with her husband, A. C. Durban, former London newsboy, following their wedding ceremony in England. The two are en route to Canada, where they plan to reside after a honeymoon.

BAUMES LAW VICTIM STILL HOPES

Still hoping for release, Ruth St. Clair, sentenced to life under New York's habitual criminal law, was brought to New York City to testify for lawyers before a grand jury. She is shown with the detective who accompanied her from the State Prison at Auburn.

The New Specimen Rabbi-Cat

The above animal is "Dukie," one year old, called the "Rabbi-cat," seeming to be half cat and half rabbit. Dukie lives on dry bread and grass, and scorns milk. He hops with his hind legs and walks with his front legs. Dukie is owned by Mrs. Virginia Maddux, of Los Angeles.

ORGANIZING SOUTHERN WORKERS

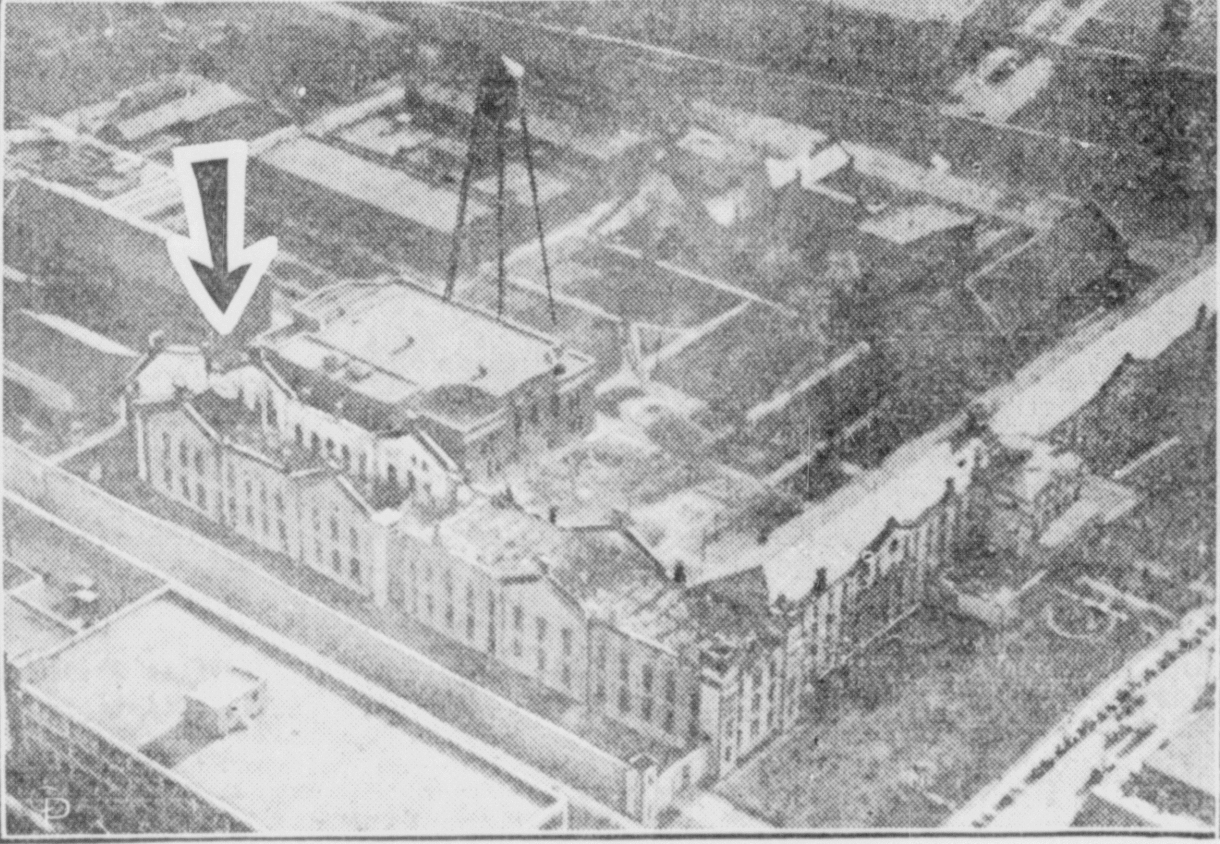

Miss Matilda Lindsey, left, women's textile organizer, and, right, Francis J. Gorman, Birmingham, Ala., vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, are leading the movement for better workers' conditions in Virginia, concentrating on the Danville, Va., mills. They claim as members all the 5,000 workers in Danville, and are protesting against what they term "horrible laboring and living conditions created by the mill bosses." They expect to organize the entire southland.

PICTURES OF FIRE

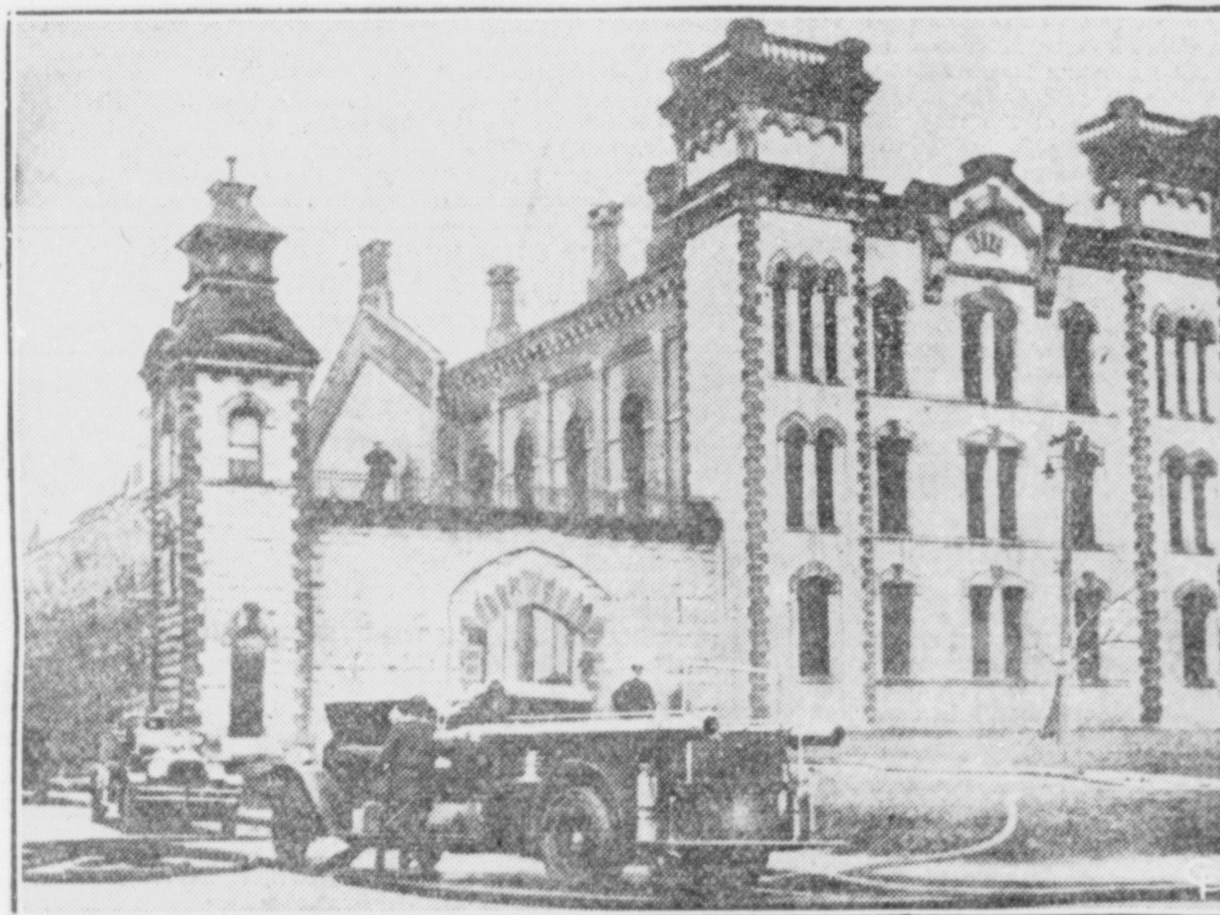

THE GAZETTE today presents a number of views of the Ohio State Penitentiary holocaust which claimed 318 lives of prisoners Monday night. Most of the pictures, taken during the time the fire was raging, graphically tell a story of the horror and confusion that gripped the state penal institution. The first air view of the conflagration shown on this page, reveals how the blaze was confined to one section but how completely that section was gutted by the flames. The picture clearly shows how the roof collapsed.

Twisted iron bars and charred timbers tell a mute story of the horrible catastrophe at Ohio's state penitentiary, at Columbus. Photo shows the remains of a section of the cell block in which hundreds of men were trapped, locked in their cells.

Remains of Albert Black, 46, 102 Bellbrook Ave., one of two prisoners sentenced from Greene County who perished in the Ohio State penitentiary fire, were scheduled to be brought to Xenia Wednesday. Private funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the J. H. Whitmer funeral parlors. Interment will be made in Masses Creek Cemetery at Cedarville.

Mrs. Willis Gales was hostess to members of Calcasieu Creek Aid Society Thursday afternoon. After the business session a short program was given by the members. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

The local Pythian Hall will hold an exchange next Saturday night at 9:30 o'clock in the Squire's office. Plenty of good things to eat is assured.

Members of the Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church held their regular meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Burr. After the business was concluded the hostess served delicious refreshments.

On Thursday of this week at the Lutheran Church in Dayton, there will be a district meeting of the Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, with several local members, with Rev. C. L. Beuhler will attend.

HIGH HAT A RADIO ROMANCE

by ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY Author of "THE FLAT TIRE"

READ THIS FIRST:
Elanda Lee, 20, after four years' singing over a small Atlanta radio station, goes to New York and, after a struggle, becomes "La Paloma" in the La Paloma Soap Hour. Suvanee Collier, ukulele player loves her, but scorns his jazz singing. Greg Du Pont wants to marry her. He is the son of the owner of the studio. Carmel Prevost is jealous, and hires a man to pose as Lord Dusenberry to get Elanda away from Greg. The "lord" proposes. Then Elanda overhears him plotting to steal the Prevost jewels with the maid, and learns the truth. For revenge, Elanda gives no warning.
Carmel locks her up because she will not tell where the crooks have gone, and Mamie, the maid calls Greg.
Greg brings a detective. Elanda becomes engaged to spite Carmel.
The papers are full of the scandal.
Dixie and Suvanee are stunned when she admits to a reporter her engagement to Gregory Du Pont.
Suvanee scorns her and calls her a gold digger.
A girl friend of Greg calls on Dixie.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIX
"You'll find out soon enough," the girl laughed gratingly, and almost pushed her in the door. "And if you don't want the neighbors to hear what I'm here to discuss with you, you'd better come in out of the heat."
The girl walked in as though she owned the apartment. Dixie was not afraid of her. She had seen too many of the same type while she was on Broadway. The girl sat down, making herself at home with saucy nonchalance.
"So you're the little flame that copped Greg Du Pont, are you? Well, I'd thought he'd have better taste."
Dixie smiled easily.
"So that's what I owe the honor of this informal little call to is it? Well, I'm not Elanda Lee. But anything you have to say, you can say to me. I'm her best friend, and I despise your Greg Du Pont about as much as certain other people seem to like him. What do you think of that? If you came here to try to break up the engagement you certainly have come to the right party."
The girl lost her air of battle.
"On the level! What's it to you?"
"Only that I happen to be a good friend of Miss Lee—and I couldn't wish any girl worse luck than being tied to that rotter."
"Yeah, well, he's no saint, that's a cinch. But I'm not ready to lose him. Are you on the level with me—or are you stalling?"
"What show are you with?" Dixie surprised her with the question suddenly.
"How do you know I'm with a show?"
"Because I was myself until I married. I can tell you're an actress. Aren't you?"
"Yes, I am. Off and on when I'm lucky."
"Well, I was in Scanties in 1927, and in the Frolic Revue after that. I'm telling you because I want you to trust me and tell me what you came here for today. I was Dixie Panning. Do you remember ever hearing anyone speak of me?"
The girl brightened with interest. You might have thought she had met a chance acquaintance in a restaurant or somewhere.
"Sure, I heard of you! You had a little specialty in Frolics. I saw you. I remember your face now. You're married?"
"Yes, and I have a little girl almost two years old."
"Well, you don't say! Isn't that lovely! Is she asleep?"
"Yes, she won't wake up for an hour or more. She sleeps every afternoon."
"Kids are wonderful, aren't they? There was a shade of selfishness in the girl's voice. Dixie knew she would talk freely to her then. And that she could save Elanda from any trouble the girl came to cause if she handled her carefully.
"You bet mine is," she smiled then. "That's why I don't want Elanda to marry Greg Du Pont. He doesn't like our baby. I don't think she has any intention of it, anyway. She just got engaged to him yesterday because Carmel Prevost made her sore. It was more to get back at her than anything else."
"Yeah? Well, believe me, if she doesn't marry him if she has the chance, she's the only dame in New York that wouldn't."
"You would understand if you knew Elanda as I do."
"Well, Greg came to see me last night and he said his getting married wouldn't make any difference with us. But I'm no fool. I know it would. Besides I don't want him to get tied up with anyone else, anyway. Not after what I've gone through with him. I lost my head about him more than a year ago, and it's been all up with me ever since."

"Well, you ought to be able to see then why I don't want my best girl friend to marry him," Dixie reasoned, watching to see how her argument was convincing the blase blond.
"Believe me, I wouldn't want my kid sister to get mixed up with a bird like that, marriage or no marriage," the girl agreed with conviction.
"Tell me," Dixie queried, "you know I'm on the level with you. What did you come here to tell Elanda today? I'll handle it for you. She'll just fly into a rage—she's a very stubborn girl. And she will marry him, sure enough, if she thinks somebody is trying to stop her."
The girl's face hardened.
"guuuuMrdshrdupppupputaunnnp" "I came here to tell her to lay off Greg Du Pont or they'd both be sorry. I've got a terrible temper, too, when somebody poaches in my love patch. I won't let any woman marry him. I—I'll kill both of 'em first!"
Dixie's heart began to beat fast. But she said lightly:
"That would be a smart thing to do, wouldn't it? Then you'd go to jail or to the electric chair, and where would you be? Use your brain!"
"I wouldn't care," the blond said dully. "I'm like that. That's what I'd do, all right enough."
"Well, I still don't think it's very clever of you," Dixie shrugged. "But I suppose if that's the way you feel you can't help it. Will you play ball with me?"
"What do you mean—play ball?" Dixie racked her brain for a plan.

The Theater

Harold Lloyd trailed to San Francisco to inquire and investigate the possibilities of shooting his next comedy, "Feet First," aboard a ship Honolulu bound, the ship being the Malolo. Harold did have his doubts set at rest concerning the use of a sound truck aboard ship. A sound truck weighs around 17,000 pounds. It could be deck shuffled.

Whether or not Lloyd and company will set sail for Honolulu and the locations the end of this month remains to be decided in conference. The trip is high-lighted with dollar marks. Booking half a ship; paying for its flicker background use; taking a troupe—actors, cameramen, electricians, et al—and cameras, lights, film, etc., some two thousand miles is no cheap proposition.

Incidentally, Harold has in "Feet First" a complete scenario with written gags and dialogue. It is the first time in twelve years he hasn't written a funster day by day on the set, the last time being when T. A. ("Tad") Dorgan, the w. k. cartoonist, wrote four stories and scripts especially for him, and Hal Roach produced them. Lloyd is experimenting with a completed script again. Talkies may be the reason.

John Barrymore has never agitated himself over the need for promptness. Sometimes, in the course of a picture, he'd wander in late or very late, and that was that. But with his current effort, "The Sea-Bast," Barrymore has been a regular alarm clock minute man. The late scholarship record is being cared for by his leading lady, Joan Bennett. After lunch hour, Joan meandered back to the outdoor set an hour and one-half late. By this time, airplanes were circling overhead and stunting around in leisurely fashion.

The company had to abandon the set and return the next day, but folks vow John never commented.

Roland (director of "Alibi") West has decided upon a story and

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Approaching from the southwest, far out in the Pacific, a thin streak of night will descend upon the California coast ten miles north of San Francisco at 10:59 a. m. on April 28, pass swiftly to the northeastward, cross the Canada line in the mid-Montana longitude, traverse the lower tip of Hudson Bay, and finally fade into the early evening twilight west of Ireland.

A thin streak!—the coming total eclipse of the sun.

"Such an eclipse," says Director James Robertson of the almanac office at the U. S. naval observatory, "frequently is total to an earthly belt fifty to 100 miles wide.

Very Small Strip

"This one will be total near San Francisco only to a .5-mile strip, narrowing gradually to nothingness to the northeastward.

"And I will say," added the professor, "that it requires close figuring to determine it accurately for the benefit of expectant astronomical observers."

To be sure, it will be pretty dark both to the northward and the southward of the path of complete opacity. Ordinary folk will consider it total, for all practical purposes, for many a mile in each direction.

However, bit by bit, as the distance increases, a rim of sun will be more and more distinctly visible around the circumference of the moon's disk, until the lunar shadow is lost altogether.

Southern Line

To the southward it will have faded into undimmed daylight along a line drawn approximately across southern Yucatan and central Cuba.

On the further side of the track of totality, the area of slowly diminishing obscurity will swing far beyond the north pole, into the higher longitudes of the eastern hemisphere.

Observers who reckon by Pacific standard time, says Prof. Robertson, should be on the lookout for it approximately at 11 a. m.; folk in the Mountain time region at noon; those in the Central time belt at 1 p. m.; inhabitants of the Eastern time territory at 2.

It will be a swiftly-moving shadow. Some eclipses are leisurely enough to be watched, in their totality, for a limited number of minutes; a split second hand will be required to clock this one accurately.

It may seem as if a solar eclipse should manifest itself first in the east and travel across the heavens to the westward with Sol, on his customary daily journey. However, lunar eclipses of the sun do not work that way.

tremely far, the apparent diameter of the moon covers the entire sun, but only for an instant. When the moon is extremely near the earth (in perigee) the apparent diameter of the moon is much greater, and a total obscuring of the sun will last for five minutes or more. If the moon is extremely far from the earth (in apogee), the apparent diameter of the moon becomes less than that of the sun, so the sun's rim projects beyond the disk of the moon, giving what is called an annular eclipse.

This eclipse begins as an annular eclipse, and so remains until just before reaching the California coast, when it becomes total. From there on it continues total until reaching Montana, when it returns to annular eclipse again.

It's Moon's Shadow

It is the moon's shadow in the form of a cone that reaches the earth at total eclipse. When the moon is just a little too far out toward the sun, the point of the shadow cone does not reach the earth. Then the annular effect is produced. At its very nearest this time, just the point of the moon's cone shadow reaches the ground across California, northwest Nevada and southwest Oregon, and over Idaho, so that the width of the shadow will be but a little more than a half mile, and the totality will last but one and one-half seconds.

But it will be spectacular while it lasts, for during the entire time the sun's transparent atmosphere will project beyond the periphery of the moon, and astronomers will photograph that through a spectroscopic. Others will photograph the solar corona.

If your sky is clear that day, have your smoked glass or dark-ready, to see the sight.

Tear Gas Quelled Prison Riot

Fifty armed State troopers in the yard of the Rhode Island State Prison, Howard, R. I., following the wholesale jail delivery attempt. Thomas MacNeal (left), who was serving a thirty-year sentence, shot himself through the head when he saw that the escape attempt had been frustrated. John G. Miller (right), another convict wounded in the break. "Pegleg" Champlain, a trustee of the prison, was killed when he attempted to turn in an alarm when the break started. A series of tear gas bombs put an end to the attempted break. (Center inset) Charles E. Linscott, warden.

"Doctor recommended it," says Miller, of Camden, N. J.

Camden, N. J.—"More than fourteen years ago my doctor recommended Pluto Water to me as a preventive of constipation," says Louis H. Miller, local resident. "I knew it, of course, as a prompt relief measure, but this was a new use. Ever since that time, my whole family has used it, and we would not be without it for a minute. The treatment is simple—a small dose, in plain hot or cold water, each morning upon arising. It keeps the system

The newest and finest in 8-cylinder Quality and a New Scale of Low Ownership Costs

Come see how economical a fine "Eight" can be. Hudson combines eight cylinder quality with the low first cost and maintenance of cars that heretofore dominated the medium-priced field.

Here is a quality "Eight" in the "Six" price range. Here is an "Eight" of outstanding performance and economy. Here is a car to bring back your first thrills in motoring.

And with this mechanical excellence, Hudson's Great Eight, in beauty and rich appointments, questions the wisdom of ever paying more for any car.
